How comments are categorized: themes are assigned by a transparent keyword taxonomy built for this survey (28 themes across 7 categories), kept separate from the PXIP category set by design so the open-ended read stands on its own. The mapping lives in `taxonomy.py` and can be tuned without touching the scores.

IN THEIR WORDS — WHAT TO FIX

> When someone sits down at a station that is reserved, there is no indication. It would be helpful to discourage them from using what's been reserved.
> — Associate, 2 to 5 years · Desk Availability & Reservations · represents ~44 similar comments

> The only other thing is the ability to store/maintain required, hard-copy legal documents. The PulsePoint doesn't really facilitate that and, at least in my view, home isn't the best place for that type of document to be stored.
> — Associate, More than 10 years · Positive / Appreciation · represents ~8 similar comments

> Some locations can be too noisy because people tend to take phone calls in the hallway areas.
>
> — Associate, More than 10 years · Noise & Distraction · represents ~30 similar comments

> The limited number of capsules to have meetings that require discretion. The limitation of 2 hours in each capsule.
> — Director or Manager, More than 10 years · Privacy & Confidentiality · represents ~28 similar comments

> Hinder = 1) Monitors are unnecessarily 'reset' to locations that are unusable and each visit requires maneuvering monitors/cords/etc. 2) Keyboards/mice - We went from Covid is the plague to communal keyboards/mice. I'm the furthest thing from a germaphobe, but communal keyboards are strange.

IN THEIR WORDS — WHAT'S WORKING

> It is so CLEAN here, I love it. The staff who keep this place clean are great at what they do! The security guards on the ground floor are also awesome and I love them.
> — Associate, 6 mos to 24 mos. · Positive / Appreciation

> Don't change anything about the Atlanta office please. I use all the spaces and since I have to commute 3 hours 3 times a week (9 total), I really appreciate at least being able to work in a great location after the drive.
